

Kick Off Football Season the Ethical Way

After a long, sweaty, gridiron-free summer, the return of football season is always cause for celebration. Whether you're a fan of college or pro, whether you're at the stadium or rooting from your couch, no game is complete without something to drink and something to snack on. The drinks and munchies below are made by ethical companies that treat their workers fairly and give them a voice on the job. So while you're lifting a cold one and chowing down on something salty or savory, you're also bolstering the middle class.
