

Election Day Edibles

Anybody who has ever attended an election party knows that the atmosphere can get a little bit tense. Once the votes have been counted, that tension gives way to elation or misery depending on what the electorate decides. As you're stocking up for your election night party, make sure you've got some salty stuff for the tension, some champagne for the victory and some sweets to help console the disappointed. All of the supplies whether salty, bubbly or sweet are made by companies who treat their workers with respect and give them a voice on the job.

Be sure to vote on election day and let's all ballot and binge our way to a stronger America.
