The kids are back in school and the kickoff to the NFL and college football seasons is right around the corner, which means that summer is on the way out. With the three-day Labor Day Weekend coming up, we can’t think of a better occasion to fire up the barbecue one last time. The items below are made by companies who treat their workers fairly and give them a voice on the job. Send summer out in style, and let’s all help shop our way to a stronger America.
