

The Lowdown on Ethical Sweets

Unquestionably, Halloween will look different this year. Since we are still in the middle of the COVID-19 pandemic, there will probably be a lot fewer trick-or-treaters knocking on doors. Nonetheless, even with parties, frightfests and door-to-door treat-hunting curtailed, the kids (and, sure, many of their parents) are still going to expect candy. Whether you're preparing for an in-home Halloween spook-tacular or stocking up the sweet section of your pantry, you have choices. The sugary favorites listed below are made by companies that treat their workers fairly and give them a voice on the job. The knowledge that you are supporting union jobs and helping to build a stronger middle class should make those sugary goodies taste that much sweeter.

Labor 411
MAKING IT EASY TO SUPPORT GOOD JOBS
LOS ANGELES | SAN FRANCISCO | WASHINGTON, D.C. | PHILADELPHIA | NEW YORK

Happy Halloween from Labor 411

Sweet and Ethical:

Abba-Zabba (BCTGM)
Almond Roca (BCTGM)
Baby Ruth (BCTGM)
Big HunK (BCTGM)
Butterfinger (BCTGM)
Cadbury (UFCW)
Ghirardelli Chocolate (BCTGM)
Hershey Original Chocolate Bar (BCTGM, UFCW)
Hershey's Kisses (BCTGM)
Hot Tamales (BCTGM)
Ice Breakers (BCTGM)

Jelly Belly Jelly Beans (BCTGM)
Jolly Ranchers (BCTGM)
Just Born (BCTGM)
Look! (BCTGM)
Mike and Ike (BCTGM)
Payday (BCTGM)
Peeps (BCTGM)
Red Vines (BCTGM)
Rolo (BCTGM)
Russell Stover (BCTGM, UFCW)

See's Candies (BCTGM)
Sour Patch (BCTGM)
Sugar Babies (BCTGM)
Sugar Daddy (BCTGM)
Tootsie Rolls (BCTGM)
Zours (BCTGM)